

The iPhone X iPhone release is just around the corner.people are still debating whether or not you need a new phone just to have it with the latest tech. In this post I will suggest which one of these devices you ought to get for your next purchase. Do you want a brand new phone or an existing model? -Brand New: iphone x or iphone 8s -Existing Model: iphone 8, iphone 7, tab 4, tab 3... etc... If you want a brand new phone, it's very clear that iphone x is the superior choice. Although iPhone 8s has higher margins than iphone X, it falls short of the experience iphone x offers. Do you mind not having a headphone jack? -Yes: You should buy iphone X. No one is exceptional with the death of this port now. And besides, It's technically not essential anymore. Apple has released wireless AirPods for sale too which are genius in their own way. You can charge your phone wirelessly by placing on a charger pad anywhere provided you have access to power source.( 10watt home charger). And they claim that it provides an average of 5 hours talk time. It also comes with a lightning to 3.5mm adapter which is not essential but nice to have. -No: You can make non wireless headphones work on the iphone X by connecting them through the lightning port. This isn't really a big deal because you will always have your charger on you at all times anyway( for both wireless headphones and phone). Does size matter? -Yes: You should buy iphone x or tab 4 max, this is the future of smartphones, bigger screens are coming. Plus, bigger screen means better quality viewing experience.(check picture below). -No: With the size of the phone still at 5.5 inches, you can opt for iphone 8 or earlier models. You should also consider if your budget can sustain an upgrade.Although most people will say to go with the latest tech, it isn't always practical, especially for those who are not planning on upgrading it anytime soon. My advice is to buy phones that will be relevant in the next 2-3 years, unless your company allows you to upgrade sooner than that. If you're looking for value for money, stick to existing models which are still powerful enough to handle all your needs. The best bang for your buck is to purchase an iphone 8, which is still the top of the line, and won't cost you much in the long run.
