
Darna Mana Hai is a series of Hindi action movies featuring the super hero Darna, who is depicted as a Filipino folklore character who fights evil and injustice. The movies were released in 1994, 2000, 2002 and 2008. All movies were directed by Ishmael Bernal. Amitabh Bachchan played the childhood version of Darna in "Darna Mana Hai." The Darna Movies: A Short Overview: Released in 1994: Set in Manila, Philippines during World War II - The inhabitants come under attack by an evil queen and her giant robot ape. A lady vigilante known as Darna comes to their rescue before leaving for other adventures... Released in 2000: Set in Manila, Philippines during today's time - A Para-military organization called "Taliba" has taken over the city. The rich are made to experience the poverty of the poor. Darna is resurrected to help restore peace and justice... Released in 2002: Set in Manila, Philippines during today's time - A TV producer named Lorna tries to persuade a famous rock star named Narda to become a superheroine named Darna for her TV show. When Lorna is attacked by thugs who want to take over her TV station she decides that Narda should become the new Darna... Released in 2008: Set in Manila, Philippines during today's time - A young girl named Ariana seeks revenge against the drug lords who killed her father. When Ariana is recruited by a woman named Cindy to become the new Darna she becomes a target of evil forces... Amitabh Bachchan played the role of Manong, Darna's older brother who trains her to be a warrior. The character Manong was inspired by the Filipino folklore about Darna's creator Mars Ravelo, who was also an older brother to Faire-May Ravelo or "Dyesebel", another Philippine folklore character. Manong has an alter ego known as Big Brother. The movies feature fight scenes between real-life martial arts fighters like Rodolfo Llanes, Baby Dobie, Marlon Marcelino, Rod Liberato and Lauro Chartrand. The movie "Darna Mana Hai" was released in 1994 to celebrate the 30th anniversary of Darna comics. The producers gathered over 40 Filipino filmmakers to help produce the movie.

An independent fantasy thriller film titled Gagamboy starring John Lapus was released in 2003. Written and directed by Roi Vinzon, it is an homage/parody of Mars Ravelo's comics series "Darna". The film was produced by Regal Films in Manila, Philippines. The movie title is a play on words of the name of the Filipino comic book character and the Tagalog slang word "gagamba" meaning "wild beast". The character Darna was played by Anne Curtis. The film featured special effects and stunts by Gary Estrada. The film Gagamboy 2 was released in 2005 and starred Bubbles Paraiso (actor) (Darna's new look), Marie Lozano, Nikki Valdez, Lauren Young, Alwyn Uytingco and John Lapus (Darna). It was written and directed by Roi Vinzon. This movie did not perform as well as its predecessor did.
