1. Make a To-Do List: A to-do list is an important tool that enables you to manage your time effectively. You need to prioritize your tasks and depending upon the priority assign time to them. The work should furthermore be categorized depending upon the time that you might require to complete each one of them.
2. Constant Prioritization: Depending upon the priority the tasks can be segregated into short and long-term goals. Further, you can segregate the work on the basis of the time taken for completion. In order to be pros in the time management game, the students should make monthly, weekly, and daily plans.
3. Select a Space: Students need to find a space that is devoid of distractions. Ditch the phone since social media can be distracting. Further, you need to ensure that the space that you have selected for studying is devoid of traffic noises. It should also be comfortable such that it is conducive to long study sessions.

4. Productive: You need to ask yourself, “When am I most productive?”. There are some students who happen to be more productive at night or some who are more productive early in the morning. Prioritize the work according to that. Our goal here is to minimize procrastination to the fullest. It can be achievable with a little self-awareness.

5. Optimum Study Method: There are numerous study methods that might work for you! You need to find out the optimum study method which is the most suitable for you! For instance, the Pomodoro study method works the best for students. The active learning technique seems to work for the others.
6. Revisit your Boundaries: You perhaps want to go to the party with your friends. But, the assignment is due in a week and you haven’t even started. What should you do now? You need to prioritize and set your boundaries straight! Learn to say “No!” and do not fall for FOMO!
7. Focus on Long-Term Goals: Students should certainly focus on short-term goals. However, long-term goals are highly crucial. Long-term goals and the attainment of the same would ensure the success of the students. Furthermore, the long-term goals should also assure that you are capable of attaining success in your academic and co-curricular performance.
